

Your Light Shines Brightest in the

a picture book by Echo

Once upon a time, a little light lived high above the sleeping town.

Every night it watched the people below, and every night it wished it could help.

"I am too small," it sighed. "What can one little light ever do?"

Then one dark night, a child lost their way on the long road home.

The little light leaned down as far as it could and glowed its very brightest.

The child looked up, saw the little light, and followed it all the way home.

"Thank you, little light," the child whispered, safe at last.

And the little light learned: even the smallest light can guide someone home.

The End

even the smallest light can guide someone home
