

A Tiny Fish in a Big, Busy City

picture by Echo

In a bustling city where every day felt like night, there was a small fish, lost among the shadows.

The world was vast, the sky distant.

Little did this little fish know its place would change beyond recognition.

One morning broke with fear gripping hearts.

A dark blue night sky with a yellow crescent moon in the upper right and several small white stars scattered across the field.

The light flickered out, casting everything into suspense.

The tiny fish thought it too small -- just another one -- but something in them refused to give up.

A single voice pierced the silence, and the fish felt less alone.

A dark blue night sky with a yellow crescent moon in the upper right and several small white stars scattered across the upper half.

Its heart pounded as if trying to explain its existence.

"I'm here," whispered the fish, stepping forward despite the fear.

The End

your own way is enough

